Is seen. The few spectators who had the discrimination to attend, made up in enthusiasm for what they lacked in numbers and remained in their seats until the game was called by Umpire Cowan on account of dark. The score indicates that it was for the most part a pitchers' battle, but there was action for every man on both teams. Though each pitcher did star work and kept the safe ones well exattered, the real feature was the nelding work of both teams. Strother, for Culpeper, fannee eight men, and is opponent. Hinchman, knocked down nine at the piate. Time after time, however, the men behind there handled difficult ones that looked like as from the first crack of the brit. Several of those who have not missed a game this season pronounced it the pretiest game of the summer.
